If the parking lot is full, where do I park my empty trailer?

If the Lakefront Boat Launch is full, the City of Hudson does not have an overflow lot. The City of Hudson has an ordinance for empty boat trailers that are parked.

City of Hudson Ordinance 235-3 G (5)

- No parking empty boat or watercraft trailers on public streets or city owned lots.
- Penalty for parking an empty boat trailer is a $50 violation.
- There are signs that post this ordinance as you enter Hudson, as well as the boat launch.

I paid the launch fee but forgot to place the slip on my vehicle’s dashboard. What should I do?

Call or email the Hudson Parking Department and let them know you paid. You will be asked to provide your slip number that’s located on the envelope, as well as your citation number, and a brief description of what happened. Once we have the information, we will void out the citation if you have a valid payment.

I am joining my friends on a boat, but do not have a trailer. Can I park my car in the boat launch lot?

Vehicles without a boat and trailer are not allowed in the boat launch parking lot. The lot is only for drivers that have a boat and trailer. There is a sign that is posted as you drive into the lot from 1st Street. If you are caught parking there, you will receive a parking violation.
